

Learning outcomes: Chapter 1

1. You should be aware of the practical motivation for studying environmental extremes.
2. You should be able to give examples of recent disasters which have occurred as a result of the observation of environmental extremes.
3. You should be aware of the drawbacks of simple approaches for estimating environmental extremes based on empirical observation.
4. You should understand the role of statistical models for estimating environmental extremes.